HISTORICAL SKETCH . . .

Centenary College was founded in 1825 at Jackson, Louisiana. The charter was granted by the legislature and for twenty years the school made its contribution as a state institution. By 1845, the state had decided it could not afford a college at Jackson. In 1839 the Methodist leaders of the Mississippi Conference established a college in Mississippi to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Methodism. This college was moved to Jackson in 1845, taking over the campus and building there in the name of Centenary College of Louisiana.

In the years immediately preceding the Civil War, Centenary College became one of the leading educational institutions of the South. With the opening of the Civil War, the first period of Centenary's existence came to a close. College was suspended and the buildings were transformed into hospitals and quarters for both Federal and Confederate troops. In the fall of 1866, the college was re-opened, and during the years of reconstruction struggled to make its contribution to the leadership of the territory.

During the closing years of the 19th century, it became apparent that Jackson did not possess the advantages for a college which Centenary desired. In the fall of 1908, Centenary was invited to move to Shreveport. Like many other American Colleges, Centenary experienced great growth in the early 1920's. With the close of World War II, Centenary's enrollment leaped far above all former numbers. The administrative officials and the Board of Trustees of the institution set in motion a program for increasing its resources, and this effort is producing the results for which the friends of Centenary have been hoping.

The history of any institution is not difficult to sketch in terms of dates, names, and tangible evidence of progress or change. These are, for the most part, facts which may be gained from a study of the records and the annals of the college. Yet it is the spirit of its leaders, the ideals expressed in its classrooms, the principles to which it is dedicated that give impetus and meaning to the college and its history. Qualities of heart and mind are reflected in the traditions, the aims, and the men and women who have gone out from the college to take their places in society. The heritage which Centenary possesses is now the heritage of each of you who claim it as your college home.

Welcome to the Student Body

In entering college you are making an investment in yourself and your future which will pay rich dividends for years to come.

The College faculty and administrative staff will do their part to create and maintain a friendly and stimulating atmosphere on our campus and in our classrooms. I welcome this means of extending a cordial welcome to each of you.

JOE J. MICKLE, President

ACADEMIC

Registration. The three periods of registration are at the beginning of the fall and spring semesters, and during the summer session. Work may begin during any one of these periods.

A late registration fee of $5.00 is charged to those students who fail to complete registration prior to the first day of classwork.

Pre-registration. The Period of pre-registration for the spring semester is intended for those who are enrolled during the fall semester and plan to return for the spring semester. This pre-registration period precedes the semester final examinations. Those students who are on academic probation may not re-register.

Counseling. Counseling at Centenary is a combined and a joint responsibility. The Dean of the College assists the students with problems in the area of academic affairs. The Dean of Students is the counselor to students on any problem; personal, social, dormitory, fraternity and sorority, or problems of a general nature. The Dean of Women is a counselor to students on personal, social, or sorority problems. In addition, she assists the student with problems of a general nature. The Registrar is responsible for assistance, during the spring semester of the Junior year, with a degree plan, and with graduation requirements. The services rendered by these officers are designed especially for the student with the view in mind of helpful assistance.

At the time of admission to the College, the student is assigned a faculty advisor. The advisor is normally a faculty member within the department of the student's major interest area. This advisor remains so until the student indicates a major area at which time the head of the department is considered the advisor until graduation.

Change of Course. After the day of registration, a course may be added or dropped only with the permission of the instructor concerned and with the approval of the Dean of the College. Changes after registration should be requested only under exceptional circumstances. A charge of $1.00 is made for EACH course change after classwork has begun. A change in course after the first seven weeks of regular semester will result in the receipt of an F in that course.

Class Attendance. All classes in which the student is enrolled are to be attended regularly unless prevented from doing so by death in the family, or by extenuating circumstances.

If a class is missed more than four times, the student may be dropped from the course at the option of the instructor, for the remainder of the semester. An alternative prior to continuation of the course is a reinstatement examination. Furthermore, those students frequently absent from class will be assigned extra outside preparation. When an absence occurs, the student should notify the instructor and explain the reason for the absence.

Credit will be given a student who has missed more than one-third of the total class meetings at the discretion of the instructor.

Quality of Work. In determining the quality point ratio, the 4 (four) quality point system is employed at this institution as follows:

For each semester hour of A — 4 quality points

For each semester hour of B — 3 quality points

For each semester hour of C — 2 quality points

For each semester hour of D — 1 quality point

For each semester hour of F — 0 quality points

Academic Probation. Each student is expected to maintain an average of 2.0 or “C” at the end of a semester. Furthermore, he is to pass a minimum of nine hours class work with a grade of “C” or better in these nine hours. Failure to accomplish either results in one semester of academic probation.

In order to remove a probation a quality of work of 2.0 or nine hours of “C” or better is required during the probationary semester. If this standard is not met, the student is placed on Second Probation.

In order to remove a Second Probation, the student must achieve a quality of work of 2.0 or better during the (Second) Probationary Semester. Failure to meet this standard will result in suspension from the college for a period of one semester and the summer session.

If after once removing a scholastic probation, the student should fail to meet the minimum standards, he would always be placed on Second Probation.

Probation during the First Semester of College. The student may be placed on probation after high school, or during his first semester of college work, if the high school average is less than a “C.” The high school average is based on the academic subjects only.

Classification. Regular Students, enrolled for 12 or more semester credit hours, are classified on the basis of the number of hours accumulated as indicated below:

Freshmen — Less than 27 semester credit hours

Sophomores — 27 - 59 semester credit hours

Juniors — 60 - 89 semester credit hours

Seniors — 90 or more semester credit hours

Grading System. The grading system is as follows: 93-100—A, 85-92—B, 78-84—C, 70-77—D, and below 70—F.

Grades are issued at the close of each semester. At mid-semester a “pink slip” is mailed to those students who have a deficient grade in one course or more.

Examinations. The week prior to final exams is “Dead Week.” Planned student activities will be prohibited during this week.

Until the last semester as a Senior the student will be required to take written examinations over the entire material covered during the semester. These are given during the last week of the semester and are required of all students with the exception of graduating Seniors with a current average of A or B and the Professor’s official dispensation. By graduating we refer to those Seniors who are completing their work that semester.

Examinations generally sample thoroughly the most important material covered in the course. They are intended to reveal the student’s progress and the extent of his knowledge and understanding.

Examination schedules are prepared by the Registrar and posted two or three weeks prior to the examination period.

Dean’s Honor Roll. The Dean’s Honor List is published after each semester. To make the Dean’s List, the student must maintain a minimum quality point average of 3.5 for the semester.

Scholarships are usually awarded on consideration of the applicant’s scholastic record in the past, his present promise as a student, his character, and his financial need. All scholarships are credited toward the payment of the holder’s tuition and fees. No student may hold more than one scholarship at a time. The course includes chapel, the Wilson Lectures, and the Lyceum programs. This course carries one semester hour credit per semester and is not transferable. Furthermore, there is no tuition charge for this course. In addition to the 124 hours required for graduation, a student must present one additional hour in General Education 121 for each semester in attendance as a full-time student.

No regular student is exempt from this regulation. Furthermore, the student must attend two-thirds of all programs. If this standard is violated, regardless of the considerations causing the non-attendance, a grade of "F" will be recorded on the permanent record and an additional hour of credit must be earned in a subject approved by the Dean of the College.

Protestant students attend chapel in the Brown Memorial Chapel and Catholic students attend at the same hour in the Science Auditorium.

The Honor System

A. Honor Code

Each student who enrolls in Centenary College becomes a responsible member of the college community. Such citizenship has its privileges and its obligations. The privilege to which each student is entitled is to move in an atmosphere of mutual respect and freedom. The obligation which each student assumes during matriculation is to act in accordance with easily recognizable standards of honesty, decency, and integrity.

Such mutual respect and freedom is only possible when all students are placed upon their honor in fulfilling regulations and requirements of academic work and procedure, as the following:

1. Cheating on tests and examinations is a violation of the honor system. Cheating may be defined as (a) using notes, the textbook, or reference material during a test or examination, unless specifically authorized to do so by the teacher of the class; (b) looking on the test paper of another student in the class; or (c) receiving aid verbally or in writing from another student.
2. Plagiarism on themes, research papers, reports and speeches is a violation of the honor system. Plagiarism may be defined as borrowing phrases or ideas from printed material without giving proper credit.
3. Receiving unacknowledged assistance from other students in preparing reports, experiments, papers and similar assignments is a violation of the honor system. Studying together would not constitute a breach of honor, but copying someone else's report or paper would be a violation.

An integral part of the Honor Code is respect for the system and its inviolability. A breach of the code is considered as an affront to the will of the majority of students who desire to govern their own conduct by the following high standards of honor and integrity. The privilege of living under the system, therefore, carries the obligation to report violations of the code.

All reports of violations are to be received and judged by an Honor Court chosen by the student body and fully authorized by the administration, faculty, and students to deal with such offenses.

In drafting this Honor Code the Student Senate of Centenary College believes that the following values will accrue from the adoption and application of its principles:

1. That the standards of the college will be raised socially, morally, and academically.
2. That a better relationship between faculty and students will result.
3. That students will be encouraged to develop a sense of responsibility.
4. That the student body will accept disciplines in honesty and integrity as a fundamental part of their education.
5. That the value of the degree earned at Centenary College will be increased as a result of the adoption of the honor system.
6. That the prestige of the college will be increased.
7. That there will be a general moral improvement in every area of college life.

The Senate believes that the Honor System, functioning as a cherished and sacred code of conduct, will, therefore, elevate the moral tone of the campus and pervade all relationships of college life with a spirit of mutual trust and confidence.

B. The Honor Court

The Honor Court shall consist of five students nominated by the faculty and students and appointed by the already existing honor court. Members of the honor court hold office until graduation.

C. Procedures Under the Honor System

Tests and examinations will be conducted under the honor system as stated. Professors will stay in their classrooms for a few minutes after each test begins, and will return periodically during the examination to answer questions which may arise. The student is on his honor not to give or receive help whether or not the professor is absent from the room.

At the end of each test or examination paper, the following pledge should be written and signed (or if printed on the test or exam paper, only signed) by the student: "I have neither given nor received help on this examination, nor have I seen any one else do so, except as I shall report to a member of the Honor Court without delay." The use of this pledge is not intended as a reflection upon the honor of the student, but as a reminder that the Honor System places responsibility upon each individual student.

If the student observes behavior which seems to indicate a violation of the Honor Code during an exam, but there is reasonable doubt that the suspected student is cheating, the suspected student should be warned by tapping the desk sharply with a pencil or pen.

Thorough investigations will be made of reports of violations of the Honor Code, and hearings will be held by the Court. The student reporting an offense will be questioned privately and in no way embarrassed. The following penalties will be assessed for violation of the Honor Code: (1) conviction on first offense, loss of credit in the course; (2) second offense, suspension for one semester; (3) third offense, dismissal. Appeals from the findings of the Honor Court may be taken to the President of the College.

Penalties. Penalties for the violation of College Rules and Regulations may be imposed by the College Committee on Discipline with the approval of the President. Any one, or any combination of two or more of the following penalties may be imposed.

1. Scholastic probation,
2. Social probation,
3. Deprivation of offices and honors,
4. Suspension,
5. Expulsion.

Student's Obligation. Each student, upon matriculation at the College, assumes an obligation to preserve faithfully all property provided by the College for his education, to obey all rules and regulations made by properly constituted authorities and to discharge his duties as a student with fidelity, diligence and honor.

Personal Conduct. The conduct of the individual is an important indication of character and future usefulness in life. It is, therefore, incumbent upon each student to maintain the highest standards of integrity, honesty, and morality.

Honor. Honesty and honor constitute exact measures of a student's worth. All cheating, cribbing, falsification, or impersonation in a classroom, laboratory, or examination are expressly forbidden.

Dress. Centenary students are expected to dress with discretion and in good taste at all times. Particular attention should be given to Sunday Dress in the Cafeteria.

Drinking. The possession or use of alcoholic beverages on the Centenary campus, in the fraternity or sorority houses, in dormitories, in college buildings, in any house approved by the college for student residence, or in any connection with Centenary functions, including social affairs and college sponsored trips is forbidden. Any misconduct or abnormal conduct resulting from the use of alcoholic beverages in Shreveport or elsewhere is subject to disciplinary action.

Gambling. The pool tables in the Moore Student Center are provided for recreational use only. Gambling at these tables is not permitted.

Smoking. Smoking is prohibited in classrooms, laboratories, and gymnasium.

Firearms. Firearms are expressly forbidden in dormitories.

Housing. All students not residing in the home of bona fide relatives must live in college dormitories. All housing off the campus must be approved in writing by the Dean of Students and the Dean of Women. Regulations governing dormitories are published in each dormitory; every student resident must familiarize himself with those rules at once.

Financial Obligations. The student should exercise financial responsibility at all times. Tuition and fees, room and board, or any other monetary item should be paid with regularity to the college. Furthermore, careful responsibility must be exercised relative to financial matters with private businesses in the city. Failure to meet these financial obligations is embarrassing to the student and may prove to be the same for the college. Therefore, all financial obligations should be met completely.

All dormitory residents are to purchase meal tickets for use in the college cafeteria.

All students are asked to follow one of these methods for payment of tuition, room and board:

1. Room, board, and tuition paid in full at the time of registration.
2. Room, board, and tuition paid in three equal installments. The first installment at the time of registration, the second one month from date of registration, and the third installment one month from the second installment.
3. Tuition paid in three equal installments on dates listed in number two (above). Room and board paid monthly in advance.

The policy on refund is listed in the College Catalogue.

Veterans' Benefits. For those students studying under the G. I. Bill of Rights, the college provides a Veterans' Coordinator on campus. The Veterans' Administration maintains an office in the city with complete testing service. Test results are often helpful in determining fields of interest and special abilities.

Employment Service. For those seniors or other students equipped to take full-time employment cognizance should be made of the service rendered by the office of the Dean of Students. Current copies of the College Placement Annual are available for use, and calls for employees are made frequently. In addition the Dean of Students' Office will assist the prospective employee with letters of application, letters of recommendation and employment assistance of a general nature.

For part-time employment, the office of the Director of the Moore Student Center maintains a file of those seeking employment in special fields. There are numerous calls from employers. Therefore, it is advantageous to file with this office for assistance in obtaining employment on or off the campus.

The College Bookstore. The Bookstore, located in the basement of the Moore Student Center, has items from textbooks to greeting cards. Residents of Rotary Hall and the Faculty receive mail through the college post office located in the Bookstore.

Lost and Found. If an item has been lost or found, check with the Director in the Moore Student Center. Positive identification of all personal property is a good practice. Articles found in the Science Building are usually taken to the office of the building superintendent in the basement.

Who's Who. Each year a limited number of Junior and Seniors are selected for the honor group known as Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. This honor is based on leadership, academic quality, and contribution to college activities.

Popularity Winners. Each year the Student Senate sponsors a popularity contest in which the "favorites" from each class are selected. During this contest a senior man and woman are accorded the honor of being named Centenary Lady and Gentleman. Another honor for women is the title of Miss Centenary. She and a court of beauties are selected in an election sponsored by the Yoncopin. All of these are featured in the college annual.

The Snack Bar and Cafeteria. The Snack Bar in the Moore Student Center is the place to go for between classes refreshment. There is always good fellowship. Hope to see you at the Snack Bar some day soon.

The place for eating "home cooked meals both nutritious and delicious" is the college cafeteria. Located just east of Sexton Dormitory you will find all the dormitory students eating there and many of the town students too! A meal ticket entitles you to breakfast, lunch and supper for about 1.75 per day. All students living in dormitories are required to eat at the College Cafeteria.

Withdrawal from College. If the student wishes to withdraw from college (drop all courses), he must do so officially. Non-attendance does not relieve the student of the responsibility to officially withdraw from the college.

Health Service. Those students residing in dormitories or living in private homes are required to have one physical examination at the time the application for admission is filed. This service is performed by the student's own physician, or by one of his choice.

All expenses of prescriptions and drugs are borne by the individual student with the exception of those maintained in the infirmary for the treatment of common disorders. All expenses of dormitory or office calls of the college physician are borne by the student.

The Health Service is designed to be of special service to the student. The office of the nurse is located in East Colonial Hall. Details of the Student Accident Insurance are found in the college catalogue.

Student Publications. Gentlemanly Speaking is published annually and given to all incoming students.

The Centenary Conglomerate is the student newspaper. The Conglomerate is published once a week bearing all of the college news.

Another student publication is the Yoncopin, our annual. If you're interested in working on it, see the Editor-in-Chief.

This Is Centenary, the alumni bulletin, is published to keep the graduates of Centenary informed about the activities of the college.

All student publications are supervised by the publications committee, a joint student-faculty committee. They are in charge of supervising the publication, and of choosing the editors and business managers each spring.

The following regulations apply to automobiles on campus:

Speed Limit. The campus is a school zone and the speed limit is 15 miles per hour.

Pedestrians. The pedestrian has the right of way over cars.

Parking. The parking space on campus should be used most wisely and the student should park carefully. It is strongly recommended that unless absolutely necessary the student not drive his car on campus.

Obey the parking and no-parking signs as you would on any city street.

Fines and/or other restrictions or disciplinary action will be taken for violations of the rules governing cars.

ALMA MATER

(Words by James Church Alvord)

Where the sleepy, silver bayou
Gleams among the pines,
Watching o'er the throbbing city
Alma Mater shines.

(Chorus)

Forward, forward, Centenary—
Time and tide may fail,
But our hearts shall love thee ever—
Centenary, Hail!

Like a wave the mighty city
Surges 'round thy feet.

Guide it, train it, teach it wisdom,
Alma Mater sweet.

(Chorus)

Green the boughs that rustle 'round thee
On thy stately crest;
Greener is our mem'ry of thee—
Alma Mater blest.

(Chorus)
